

★ Don't forget about it!

Most 11+ exams consist of a question paper and a separate multiple choice answer sheet. You do your working out on the question paper, then put your answers on the answer sheet.

The multiple choice answer sheet is the ONLY part of the exam that will be marked, so make sure you don't forget to put your answers on it! It's a good idea to practise with some mock exams so that you're used to it in time for the real thing.

★ Draw a single straight line in the box

Most multiple choice answer sheets will be marked by a computer, so you need to make sure that it can clearly read your answers.

To answer a question, draw one clear horizontal line through the box that corresponds with the right answer. Try not to go over the lines, and don't spend ages colouring in!

If you want to change an answer, rub it out thoroughly before drawing a line through a new box.

★ Make sure you're putting your answer in the right place

Always double check that the question you're filling in on the answer paper matches the one you're looking at on the question paper. It's really easy to accidentally skip a question or even start filling in the wrong section, so make sure you're paying attention! All of the sections and question numbers will be clearly marked on both the question and answer papers. Practice helps a lot here, so try to do some mock exams before the real exam.

★ Don't leave any empty spaces

The best thing about multiple choice papers is that you always have a chance of getting the answer right... even if it's a total guess!

For that reason, make sure you put an answer in every box. Doing so will also help to make sure you don't get muddled up and put your next answer in the wrong place.

★ Answers ONLY!

Apart from putting your name and date of birth in the correct places, the only thing on your answer paper should be ANSWERS.

Don't show any working out on your answer paper or do any other writing/doodling of any kind. All working out should be done on the question paper.
